

XM is a wonderful service and I feel the addition of instant traffic in weather is a wonderful upgrade. I feel the move by the NAB is monopolistic tactic against Satellite radio and this is poor for competition in a competitive market for listeners. By being a subscription service XM provides this service to enhance the value of what I'm paying for and I would find highly offensive to limit these services just because the way they are broadcast. Why not stop the Weather Channel then since they are a national cable network from broadcasting weather and just leave it to the local services. This is ludicrous and a limiting Satellite Radio in any way is a bad move!

Clinton Jones